A.—(a) 27,107 tons.

(b) Not available.

(c) & (d) Since the inception of the Plant Protection Organisation in 1949, the Agricultural Department has intensified the plant protection measures for protecting the crops in the field and the grains in storage, from the infestation of pests and diseases. The knowledge acquired through investigations in the research sections has been passed on to the cultivators through the propaganda staff. There has been an increase in the response of the cultivators to the methods of pest control now advocated. The Plant Protection Organisation has now been strengthened and more equipment purchased for treating the pest in the fields and in the godowns. There is an awareness now among the cultivators in all villages as to the recompense that can be obtained by adopting pest control measures in proper time.

2. At times of severe infestation, the Government have on the recommendation of the local technical officers, declare the areas as pest-affected ones, with provision for supplying insecticides at concessional rates. The concession was at 50 per cent till 30th March 1961. But it has been reduced to 25 per cent from 1st
